

Associate Membership of the Academy of Medical Educators Information and Guidance for Applicants

We welcome applications for Associate Membership from all those who wish to demonstrate their support for the Academy's objectives. Associate Membership is popular amongst those early in their medical educational careers.

Clinicians, scientists, and others who are developing an interest in medical education, including early career medical educators who are working towards professional recognition, may apply for Associate Membership of AoME. In addition those who are involved in the education of allied health professionals (such as nurses, podiatrists, occupational and other therapists) but who are not involved in the education of doctors, dentists and vets, are very welcome to demonstrate their commitment to the Academy's Professional Standards in this way. Although many Associate Members may be meeting some elements of the Professional Standards at level 1, this is not a requirement.

To apply for Associate Membership please register on our website and complete the application form online. You will need to complete the personal details and equality and diversity monitoring sections of the form. You must then confirm you agree to the declaration on the final page before submitting your application.

Submitting your application

Applications are accepted only through the online form. There is no application fee for Associate membership. Annual subscriptions are £46 for those with a salary of under £60,000 and £60 for those whose salary exceeds £60,000

Please let us know if you experience any difficulties with the website. Documentation you provide is stored securely on our server.

Your application will be checked and if there are any details missing we will contact you. You will normally receive an invoice for your first year's subscription within two weeks of applying. You will then receive a certificate of Associate Membership.
