

Early Careers Group

AOME
ACADEMY OF
MEDICAL EDUCATORS

The Early Careers Group is for Academy members in the early part of their medical education careers.

The Group is active in addressing the concerns and issues affecting those starting on, or early in, their careers as medical educators. Early career educators include medical students, trainees, dentists and early career vets, and all those who have less than five years teaching experience.

The Group has a programme which is investigating mentoring support schemes and the provision of career case studies.

A project is ongoing looking at challenges and supportive systems to medical education career progression, in line with the Professional Standards, to develop effective policy for dissemination through the Academy.

The Early Careers Group considers ways of improving access to, training for, and sustaining, medical education careers (research and teaching).

The group consults widely with all early career stakeholders to harness as broad a range of ideas as possible and works to encourage the involvement of non-clinical staff in the Academy.

The ECG makes a significant contribution to the growth in membership of the Academy and the diversity of that membership and contributes to all aspects of the Academy by working with its Council and sub-committees.

To find out more about the Early Careers Group's activities, what membership of AoME can offer you and to apply online please visit our website: www.medicaleducators.org